Search for eJournals

In this guide:
- Locating the eJournals A-Z list
- Searching for eJournals
- Browsing eJournals
- Navigating to full-text articles

Note: This guidance outlines searching for eJournals (electronic journals) only. The eJournals search page (ExLibris) does not search for print journals, or full-text articles. To search for both electronic and print journals, visit our catalogue: https://libcat.nshealth.ca/. To search for full-text articles, visit our Google Scholar access point: https://library.nshealth.ca/az.php?a=g

Locating the eJournals A-Z list
1. Start at the library’s website: https://library.nshealth.ca
2. In the top menu, click “Search,” and then “eJournals A-Z”:

   ![Image of library website menu with eJournals A-Z selected]

Searching for eJournals
1. Once you have located the eJournals A-Z list, enter the title of a journal or related title keywords in the search bar and click "Go":

   ![Image of library website search bar and results]
2. Scroll down until you find the title you want:

Browsing eJournals
1. Make a selection from the alphanumeric range that meets your need:

2. Refine results by selecting from the ranges presented:
Navigating to full-text articles

1. Select the publisher/provider link (in this example, “EBSCOhost CINAHL Complete”) provided below the journal title you want to access:

2. At this point you may be asked to log in. Use your Active Directory credentials (same as logging in to a computer at work or accessing Outlook Webmail):

3. Scroll down and browse titles listed
3. Click the "Full text available via" link on the next screen. There may be more than one link, depending on the availability through the publisher(s)/provider(s):

4. Select the year/volume and issue you want. Please note, the look of this screen varies by provider:
5. Look for links to "PDF Full Text" link and click to view the article: